Intelligence and faith: If you think about these two words as one concept, you could say that nothing brings them together better than the Catholic intellectual tradition.

This is our foundation as a Catholic college—hundreds of years of faithful teaching and learning, examining cultural assumptions, exploring great minds, and seeking truth.

While our mission springs from the heart of this solid intellectual tradition, we have established our own identity and emerged as a college of distinction. We recently received the honor of being sixth “Best Value College in the Midwest” by US News Media Group, as well as a “Best Midwestern College” for the ninth straight year by The Princeton Review.

Institutions of higher education often proclaim their “commitment to learning” or to “excellence in education.” That is all very good, but very abstract. While some educational institutions are relegated to a limited role for a number of years in a student’s life, Saint Joseph’s College plays a very special role in our students’ lives. SJC graduates tell us over and over again of the strong bonds they have to the individuals who were an integral part of their experience here.

At Saint Joseph’s College, the centerpiece of our education—the focal point—is the faculty-student relationship, one borne of mutual respect and a sense of unity.

Each faculty member contributes to the mission of the College through their field of endeavor, but at the same time, in their own way, participates greatly in the life of each student with a deep sense of responsibility, often serving in a mentorship role. This special relationship sparks the creative dynamism that is the hallmark of an SJC education.

From manuscripts to mobile apps, the outpouring of creative energy from our academic success stories springs from the shaping of each individual’s own intellectual, spiritual, social, and personal growth.

We are dedicated to nurturing every student’s personal mission with the conviction

President F. Dennis Riegelneegg

“For an adequate formation of a culture, the involvement of the whole man is required, whereby he exercises his creativity, intelligence, and knowledge of the world and of people.

that reason and faith are mutually illuminating; that the search for truth animates their faith, and that articulation of emotion and spirit are as important as intellectual inquiry.

Our academic programs are flourishing. The recent fellowships, scholarships, internships, and project awards related to science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) areas demonstrate that we are not stuck in a static traditionalism, but draw upon the riches of a living tradition to drive us forward. We are very proud of our track record on women in the STEM areas. While other institutions struggle to bring females into STEM, SJC does it naturally, which is a testament to our forward-thinking.

More points of pride in alignment with our Catholic mission are our efforts in sustainability and our innovations in teaching, all of which involve our signature collaborative relationships among faculty, students, and community.

With so many steps taken in these areas, we have gained an exciting momentum to share with our students, a chance to offer them the places where intelligence and faith will take us.

NFL FILMS

Much has been publicized about the difficulty recent college graduates have finding a job in their field of study. After graduating in May 2012, Cameron Ellsberry '12 found himself among the ranks of young professionals seeking work. Fortunately for Ellsberry, his determination and his experience at Saint Joseph's College helped him land a coveted production internship at NFL Films in Mount Laurel, N.J.

Ellsberry, who received his Bachelor of Science in Mass Communication, works on the NFL Films show Playbook. The Southfield, Mich. native is responsible for video editing as well as doing research on different concepts, tendencies, strengths and weaknesses of the 32 teams in the NFL. To go along with his Mass Communication background, Ellsberry played linebacker for four years on the SJC football team, making a job with NFL Films an ideal fit. As part of his job, Ellsberry has had the honor of working with high profile members of the NFL.

"Working with the show Playbook, I have had the privilege to work with several former football players, including Sterling Sharpe, LaDainian Tomlinson, Donovan McNabb, Brian Baldinger, Matt Millen, and other important figures in the NFL community. It has been an incredible experience."

Ellsberry knows he may not have had the chance to meet those NFL luminaries if not for individuals who inspired him as a student-athlete.

"[SJC Assistant Professor of Chemistry and Mathematics] Marge McIlwain has been very inspirational to me," said Ellsberry. "She always keeps a smile on her face despite the obstacles she has been through in her life. The fact that she has not let her obstacles stop her from doing what she loves has encouraged me to never give up on achieving my goals."

"Along with Professor McIlwain and my family, my 'brothers' from SJC – Roderick Gray '12, Ken 'Spike'

Rossi '12, Cameron Cullers '11, John Kirkland '11, Ricky Smith '11, Cordar-ryl Banks '14, and Lonnie Hurst '11 – were inspirational to me academically and on the football field. Their dedication to academics really rubbed off on me."

For Ellsberry, the internship has been very demanding. Working late nights and spending hours on end in front of a monitor has been exhausting, but he wouldn't have it any other way.

Ellsberry credits SJC's Mass Communication department, in particular Professors Fred and Sally Berger, and the time he spent as a sports anchor for SJC's TV-6 News and on-air talent for 93.3 The Joe, with preparing him for the demands of the internship.

"The fact that I am able to come to work and get paid to watch hours of NFL football is incredible. I find it hard to even call it a job, because I would probably do it for free."

Less than a year out of SJC, Cameron Ellsberry has found an internship for a major cable network doing what he loves. It is a testament not only to SJC and the strengths of its academic program, but also to the spirit and determination that Ellsberry showed in the classroom and on the football field. Ellsberry has found his calling, and he could not be happier.

NEW APPROACH GIVES STUDENT TEACHERS an ADVANTAGE

Saint Joseph's College received a $25,000 grant award from the Helen Brach Foundation to strengthen preschool through 12th grade (P-12) teacher preparation through the implementation of a research-based co-teaching model.

The co-teaching model involves two teachers, a licensed P-12 and the student teacher. Co-teaching is defined as the cooperating teacher and teacher candidate working together with students; they jointly share the planning, organization, delivery, and assessment of instruction as well as the physical classroom space. An assigned college supervisor plays a vital role in this model by providing timely support to both teachers.

While co-teaching is not a new phenomenon in education, its application in the student teaching experience is a new area of study. The co-teaching model offers powerful advantages to the traditional student teaching methodology that is often used in teacher preparation programs across the nation. Both adaptable and progressive, the co-teaching model may be implemented with any content at any grade level.

With the co-teaching model, the Education Department hopes to build stronger connections between SJC and its school partners, improve the student teaching experience for teacher candidates, and enhance professional support and development for cooperating teachers.

Co-teaching provides a comprehensive experience for teacher candidates, and the cooperating teachers are able to provide them with high quality mentoring and the nurturing support necessary to gain the skills and confidence required for successful teachers. Throughout the co-teaching experience, the cooperating teachers remain actively involved in the teaching, which improves achievement and further enhances the quality of learning for students.

"The research on student achievement under the co-teaching model is very compelling," said Professor of Education Dr. Jennifer Barce. "We're excited to be able to offer this to our partner schools, and we think it will result in positive outcomes for everyone involved: the classroom teachers, our candidates, and most of all, the students in our community."

The responses from the cooperating teachers demonstrate that the co-teaching model has been very popular and effective. They have noticed an ability to address all needs of the learners, the opportunity to learn new approaches to lesson delivery, and more efficiency in classroom management. SJC student teachers have also been pleased with the co-teaching model.

Senior History major James Bertucci '13 of Chicago, Ill., has seen excellent results during his student teaching experience.

"Co-teaching has provided me the opportunity to work with smaller groups of students on a more personal basis, and I also believe it's been beneficial for the students," said Bertucci. "Not only do they receive more personal attention, they also get to experience different styles of teaching."

So far, the co-teaching model has been a rousing success. With the support of the grant award from the Helen Brach Foundation, the Education Department will continue to gather feedback from the student teachers and cooperating teachers in an effort to improve on the model. By utilizing innovative concepts such as co-teaching, the SJC Education Department will continue to produce young educators prepared to adapt to and succeed in all types of classroom settings.

LEGACY SPOTLIGHT

SHANNON KILEY '16

I chose to come to SJC for quite a few reasons. Not only was it in a convenient location—not too far from home but not too close—the class size was ideal, and the Core Program sounded really interesting to me. I enjoy the discussions and the books that we've read so far. I can already tell that the fundamentals we've learned in Core One will be important not only through the rest of my education, but for the real world as well.

While my parents never pushed me to go to SJC, they did encourage me to consider it. Both had very positive experiences at the College. I was very indecisive about what I wanted to major in, so my parents reminded me that at SJC, I could start my major right away and that way if I did want to change, it would be easier.

Although I am not entirely sure what exactly I want to do yet, Psychology has always interested me. Right now I'm considering having my own practice as a children's or family therapist.

So far it has been a lot of fun, and I have learned a great deal already. I hope that I can have as many great times as my parents did.

JILL BOECKLING KILEY '88

Our memories from SJC are all so wonderful. The close-knit, family-type atmosphere was exactly what we were both looking for in a college. The small class sizes allowed us to get to know our professors on a personal basis. The professors were very knowledgeable, caring, and dedicated to their students. This was extremely beneficial in all of our classes.

With both of us being in business, we utilize much of what we learned in our Core classes on a regular basis. Having learned about the diversity of people due to both cultural and religious differences guides us in our thinking on both a personal and business level. The Core discussion groups often brought about debates of moral and ethical issues, which helped us to determine what qualities in our own lives were, and still are, important.

We gave Shannon her own choice in choosing a college. She asked us questions about SJC and had visited campus several times with us throughout the past few years for alumni events. Knowing she could "jump right into her major" because of the Core Curriculum helped to win her over. We are very proud that Shannon made the decision that she did and is now a Puma too! We know that she will be well prepared for her future.

THE ROAD TO VOCATION

When James Smith '09 arrived as a student at Saint Joseph's College, he had no plans to enter a religious vocation. Yet in August 2012, Smith received his Temporary Incorporation, making him a member of the Missionaries of the Precious Blood for three years. It was quite a diversion from the road he initially saw himself taking, but as Smith says, "There were dozens upon dozens of small steps and nudges that helped to shape the story."

A native of Corydon, Ind., Smith was recruited by SJC out of high school to play tennis. When he learned about the Core Program, he designated SJC as a finalist for where he would attend. Smith was offered the Presidential Scholarship from SJC and another school, and he turned down SJC. After his freshman year at the school he chose, he decided he wanted to go to a Catholic college and somewhere closer to home, leading him to transfer to SJC. Even then, Smith was not interested in a religious vocation.

"My plan in coming to SJC was nowhere near the idea of a vocation," said Smith. "I wanted a good education where I would get to play college tennis and have a decent shot at getting into a good graduate school. It was simply an invitation, primarily through Campus Ministry, that fostered an awareness of a vocation."

Smith was initially a Sociology major and Mathematics minor. After his first discernment retreat – an opportunity for people to take some time to look at a particular community/diocese and get more information about religious life and priesthood – he decided to double major in Religion/Philosophy and Mathematics. At the time, Smith thought he might enter the seminary or graduate studies for priesthood many years down the road. He wound up finding support and inspiration from several people on campus who helped pave the way to his vocation.

"If it wasn't for the Missionaries of the Precious Blood community at SJC, I really don't know what my experience would have been like," said Smith. "Fr. Jeffrey Kirch, C.P.P.S. '98 had a big role in shaping my time at SJC, both in a formal sense of having him in class and at weekend Masses, but also in getting to know and see him beyond the classroom or in the Saint Joseph's Chapel. I was basically adopted by [former SJC Campus Ministry director] Ary Nelson '02 while I was at SJC and am still close with her to this day. Since Fr. Kirch and she are both 'ministers,' I had a great opportunity to peek behind the curtain and look at what life is like for a 'minister.'"

Kirch and Nelson continue to be major influences in Smith's life, and they provided him with an insightful glimpse into lives of ministry and vocation. Fortunately for Smith, SJC prepared him even further with the Core Program.

"The emphasis on writing papers dealing with my values and beliefs and forming my own thoughts and reactions to big ideas and concepts has greatly benefited me," said Smith. "Core has also helped me in presenting course material from a disciplinary perspective but also in getting me to approach issues from multiple perspectives at the same time. Within the field of ministry, there is an intersection of so many different disciplines and perspectives. It is really helpful to not be overwhelmed by that."

In August 2009, Smith entered Initial Formation in Chicago. After completing two years of Initial Formation, he completed Special Formation in 2012, spending a year at St. John the Baptist parish in Glandorf, Ohio. Upon making Temporary Incorporation, Smith began studies in Advanced Formation at Catholic Theological Union (CTU) in Chicago in 2012.

"A major part of the formation program is for me to do various ministries and to see different ministry sites where our members are engaged before I find myself engaged there," said Smith. "Some of these ministries include parish work, hospital and military chaplaincy, and education. I am not sure where I fit just yet."

Choosing to enter a religious vocation is no easy task. It is a decision that requires reflection, prayer, and a deep examination of one's whole self. Saint Joseph's College helped enable Smith to find a path, and although he may not know where it leads, he is sure he's heading in the right direction.

"In the end, discovering your vocation is not about finding something radically different or apart from who you are, but finding where the full 'you' fits best."

CSI, Dexter, Law & Order, The Mentalist, Cold Case, Bones, Body of Proof, NCIS, Forensic Files, Criminal Minds, The First 48... the popularity of crime shows that involve forensics has been continually rising.

However, SJC capitalized on this topic with our Forensic Science concentration several years before the phenomenon. More than 15 years ago, the first Forensic Science class was offered, with some of those students entering into crime labs in Indiana and Illinois; some are now senior analysts who have been working for 20 years at their professions. SJC established a tradition.

Although the shows are popular, young people are not always aware of what exactly is involved in really "doing forensics." SJC Professor of Biology and Forensic Entomologist Dr. Neal Haskell says, "Everyone wants to be a CSI [crime scene investigator] with the perception that CSIs conduct investigations, illuminate the evidence found, and solve murders. This is greatly removed from the reality of what the mission of forensic scientists actually is."

CSI:

The reality is that a fully equipped crime lab employs a variety of individuals trained to perform many different tasks. To prepare our graduates for these areas, students are broadly educated in a diversity of disciplines. In keeping with our brand, experiential learning is integrated with theory. What ties it all together is rooted in the College's mission of seeking truth and justice.

SJC students studying Forensics have a distinct advantage over other students. They get exposed to the highest profile crime work in the nation. Plus, they are taught by veteran scientists who have direct knowledge of cases and trials with many years of crime lab experience.

What can an undergraduate at SJC expect from our Forensics program? Haskell says, "You don't just read books about forensics. Book learning is supplemented with hands-on experience, which is incorporated into all we do."

SJC faculty live what they teach. For example, Haskell's expertise has been utilized in more than 450 death investigation cases since 1981, with some of the most publicized being the murder of Danielle Van Dam in Sabre Springs, Calif.; the "West Memphis Three" investigation; the capital murder case involving Larry Swearingen; and the high profile Casey Anthony trial, in which he was a key witness for the prosecution. Haskell has been featured on Court TV, HBO, The Discovery Channel, PBS, and in Popular Science and Discovery magazines.

Haskell collaborates with law enforcement entities, academic institutions, national and state government organizations, and with similar entities in other countries. Haskell's collaborative spirit extends to students, who get

Students Gain a Distinct Advantage at SJC

- SJC has the highest profile forensics expert faculty in the nation.
- Faculty possess crime lab experience and direct knowledge of cases and trials.
- Ours is the only program in Forensic Science that allows undergraduates to travel to crime scenes, collect evidence, and do research in on-site investigations.
- Students sit in on squad briefings, log evidence, get tours of crime labs, and do real casework alongside law enforcement.
- Students attend cases and trials, as well as regional and national forensic meetings — and interact with current experts in their fields.

to work alongside him in a laboratory setting and are able to interact with law enforcement. He encourages students to take on ever more challenging levels of responsibility.

Haskell says, "SJC students will have advantages in instructors, casework, and contacts (from networking), which students elsewhere will not have had."

One of Haskell's former students, Dr. Kristi Zurawski Bugajski '05, is an example of an SJC student who benefited from the mentoring she received. A testament to the popularity of forensics and reality shows, Bugajski was featured in an episode of the Discovery Channel series Dirty Jobs, in which she demonstrated her research. Currently Assistant Professor of Biology at Valparaiso University, Bugajski says, "Going to SJC was the best decision I ever made. Dr. Haskell and all my other professors at SJC taught me life lessons that I will always hold dear to my heart. The support and education I received at SJC has been invaluable."

Recently, Haskell was a 2012-13 finalist candidate for Fellow in The Society of Innovators of Northwest Indiana "for being a global advocate, pioneering scientist and world renowned expert in forensic entomology studying insects to solve criminal cases." Haskell's innovative mindset is revealed in the fact that the field of forensic entomology itself is a burgeoning new area—there are only about 62 total scientists involved in the field of forensic entomology.

Haskell offers workshops and lectures—on-campus and off-campus—to many groups, including law enforcement and educators. Currently there are no graduate programs designed specifically for forensic entomology. Haskell would like to meet this need by instituting a master's and a certificate program at SJC.

"Working for Dr. Haskell has been the biggest highlight of SJC for me. He has given me so many opportunities to work with people that are overwhelmingly intelligent."
Kynten Hannon '11

"Dr. Haskell is a great man. He has been like a second father. I plan on furthering my education with him in the future."
Cody Sprayberry '14

HOOPHOUSE FARMING EDUVENTURE more than a LEARNING EXPERIENCE

Adrienne DiRuzza '13

This year, Saint Joseph's College was among three Indiana independent colleges selected as the winners of the Ball Brothers Foundation Venture Fund competitive grant program. SJC, Franklin College, and Saint Mary-of-the-Woods College are sharing $75,000 in seed funding for start-up initiatives to stimulate creativity and innovation and to foster competition and collaboration among the state's 31 independent campuses.

SJC has directed its $25,000 award to develop a "Hoophouse Farming Eduventure," an innovative start-up business and educational collaboration in organic hoop-house farming that uses hoophouse technologies for four-season vegetable production. Also known as a "high tunnel," a hoophouse is a passive solar greenhouse that extends the growing season for warm and cool-season crops in both rural and urban settings.

A hoophouse construction workshop was held at SJC in July to educate participants on how to properly build hoophouses. The workshop was led by Four Season Tools agricultural specialist Mike Bollinger. The hoophouse constructed at SJC is a moveable V-track system designed by Four Season Tools.

The sponsors of the workshop included the Jasper County Soil and Water Conservation District, the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) of Jasper and Newton Counties, Purdue Extension-Jasper County, the Jasper County Economic Development Organization, and SJC's Students in Free Enterprise (SIFE) chapter.

A major part of the Hoophouse Farming Eduventure involves educating students on the business of sustainability and agriculture. SJC students are participating in work, study, and hands-on activities to learn the economics and management of crop production. In the Sustainability in Practice course taught by Dan Perkins, adjunct faculty in Earth and Space Science, students are developing a business plan in the context of crop production. This is the first offering of the Sustainability in Practice course.

Other goals of the Hoophouse Farming Eduventure are to provide healthy organic vegetables to the Rensselaer community through local markets at very affordable prices; generate sufficient revenue to incorporate the project into the curriculum and culture of the College beginning in year two; and donate 20% of vegetable production to the Good Samaritan Food Pantry in Rensselaer for consumption by needy families. In October, the first batch of crops grown in the hoophouse, which included spinach and carrots, was harvested and sold to SJC employees. Produce was also delivered to the Good Samaritan Food Pantry.

Despite the approach of the winter months, SJC Associate Professor of Education and project coordinator Dr. Lana Zimmer still anticipates a weekly harvest. As the temperatures drop, students and faculty will be able to witness the effects of passive solar heat on the crops. With the added benefit of more fresh produce available for sale and consumption, the Hoophouse Farming Eduventure is proving to be a project that will have a positive impact on the entire Rensselaer community while serving as an exceptional learning experience.

Assistant Professor of Computer Science Brian Capouch,
Jake McEvoy '15, and Maria Williams '16

SOIL SCIENCE COURSE ROOTED in CHRISTIAN HUMANISM

The principles of Christian Humanism are what lie at the root of the Core Program. Among those principles is the responsibility to care for creation and move towards a more sustainable future. With such initiatives as the founding of the Learning Garden in 2011 and the planting of the orchard south of Schwietermann Hall, the Saint Joseph's College community is demonstrating its dedication to Christian Humanism.

This year also marks the first offering of the Soil Science course, led by SJC Assistant Professor of Computer Science Brian Capouch. Several of the students in the class have conservation-based career aspirations. A large portion of the course has been dedicated to the study of the soils on the SJC campus using smart phone applications, with the goal being to take a core sample from each of the distinct soil series on the College's local farm and then take a geotagged set of images (photographs associated with a geographical location) of the resultant soil horizon profile. A soil horizon is a layer of soil parallel to the surface of the soil with different physical characteristics from the other layers. The four apps used most heavily in the project included:

- GPS Status and Toolbox, which gives detailed information about location services on the phone, as well as a number of other sensors.
- GeoCam, which captures the values of many sensors and embeds the information as data inside normal-looking JPEG images. Each image "knows" precisely its origin.
- SoilSurvey, a commercial app that gets location information from the GPS sensor, and then looks up a specially encoded soils map from servers provided by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA). It shows the precise spot where the phone is located in a scrolling map format where the colors and legend correspond to varying soil categories.

- SoilMap, a spot-checker, which takes GPS location information and then finds the particular soil series that has been mapped to that spot. It then displays detailed information about the nature and properties of that soil in a format specially designed for the smartphone.

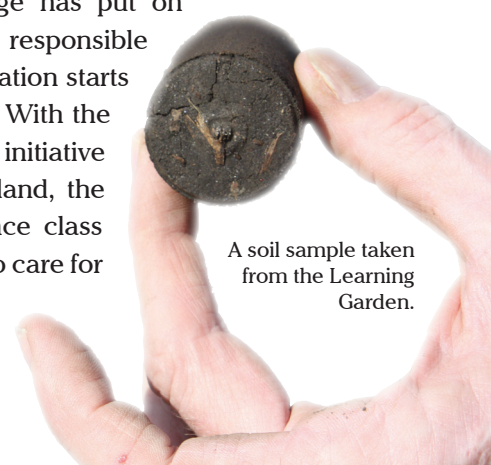

The soils on SJC's farm were ideal for study: rich in history, very fertile, yet suffering from the dry summer.

"The soils in the area were derived from glacial outwash about 10,000 years ago, making them incredibly young in a geological and pedagogical sense," said Capouch. "The surrounding areas are amongst the most fertile in the world, and so the soils are very ripe for study. This year we have the additional circumstance of having suffered an historic drought."

With the data gathered through the smartphone apps, students will gain a better understanding of the land on which the College sits, discover the effects of drought, and learn how the roots of Christian Humanism lie in unexpected places.

"The data-gathering will establish study areas on the College's farmlands with their rich natural abundance; they are a precious gift that we celebrate through study," said Capouch. "There will be many ways our land can be incorporated into our curriculum, as well as opportunities for rewarding service learning."

The focus the College has put on sustainability and finding responsible ways to care for God's creation starts with the learning process. With the use of technology and the initiative to learn more about the land, the students in the Soil Science class are discovering how best to care for it and educate others on how they can do the same.

In its mission statement, Saint Joseph's College "pledges itself to a tradition of excellence and to a liberal education that is a united endeavor of intelligence and faith." Through its academic curriculum founded on the principles of Christian Humanism, SJC educates its students to consider their values and think about the effects their decisions have on others. With its affiliation with the Indiana Space Grant Consortium (INSGC), SJC is aiming to integrate quantitative literacy into the liberal education that defines the College. Quantitative literacy is defined as the application of basic mathematical and analytical concepts and operations to problem-solving, decision-making, and real-world applications.

The INSGC is a source of National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA)-related information, awards, and programs for the state of Indiana. It awards scholarships to students at its affiliate institutions and is one of 52 consortia that are part of the National Space College and Fellowship Program, initiated by NASA in 1989.

The College received a $10,000 grant from the INSGC to expand quantitative literacy across its curriculum. Through faculty development using newly acquired Vernier technology and the implementation of hands-on interdisciplinary classroom experiences, several classes will feature world-class data-collection solutions for teachers and a full line of interfaces, sensors, software, and curriculum that help engage students through hands-on scientific exploration.

Professor of Mathematics Dr. Karen Donnelly and Assistant Professor of Mathematics Marge McIlwain, along with Associate Professor of Physics and Computer Science and INSGC Affiliate Director Dr. Jennifer Coy, led two faculty development workshops using Vernier technology. Ten professors were selected based on their commitment to quantitative literacy in at least one course they currently teach, their willingness to learn new technologies, and their commitment to implement at least one hands-on classroom experience per semester during the next academic year.

"In an increasingly quantitative and data-driven world, quantitative literacy is essential for our students," said Donnelly. "Employers expect our graduates to have a wide range of quantitative skills to succeed in their jobs."

Associate Professor of English Dr. Maia Hawthorne utilized the software Logger Pro, a data-collection and analysis software for Windows and Mac computers, in her Core 1 class. Using Logger Pro, her students charted the size of the world's largest cities throughout history so that students could see the exponential growth of cities in the last few decades.

Professor of Chemistry Dr. Anne Gull's Core 5 class used temperature probes to learn thermodynamics concepts, and motion detectors to examine astronomical detection of planets, meteors, and asteroids. Using these tools, the students came up with several questions that they could examine. Some examples included the boiling rate of water with different starting temperatures or different dissolved materials and how walking speed relates to leg length and gender.

SJC was also awarded $15,000 by the INSGC for a grant titled "Preparing for Environmental Careers through Hands-On Learning." The purpose of the grant is to provide opportunities for students in Core 6 and science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM) disciplines to explore STEM topics and environmental careers in wastewater treatment, renewable energy, and energy conservation through site visits and research on campus or in the local area.

"Students will identify and investigate questions that pique their interest and use cutting-edge technologies to study energy conservation, production and transmission; water use; and wastewater treatment," said SJC Associate Professor of Education Dr. Lana Zimmer. "Those experiences will help them to better understand the environmental challenges facing society today."

During the second semester of the 2012-13 academic year, students and faculty in six STEM courses and Core 6 will have the opportunity to work with Algaewheel, a cutting-edge wastewater treatment plant in Reynolds, Ind.; the Rensselaer Wastewater Treatment facility; Meadow Lake Wind Farm, which spreads over White, Jasper, and Benton Counties; Bio Town Ag in Reynolds, Ind.; and the SJC Physical Plant.

Aside from providing new technologies in the classroom, the INSGC also makes scholarships available to students. Biology major Adrienne DiRuzza '13 of Alexandria, Ind., Biology major Dustin Helmer '15 of Rockford, Ill., and Computer Science major Steve Quella '14 of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., were among 24 students from INSGC affiliate colleges and universities to receive the scholarship. SJC had the second highest number of scholarship recipients out of 12 schools.

To qualify for an INSGC scholarship, students must major in a STEM discipline or STEM education (or a first-year program leading into a STEM discipline). Students may continue to apply for, and be supported by, an INSGC scholarship for up to four years as long as they continue in a STEM-related major.

"Expanding quantitative literacy across SJC's curriculum is important because its application is necessary for all aspects of education and life," said DiRuzza. "I feel like people tend to forget or overlook the applications of mathematics and analytic processes involved in economics, problem solving, and in our everyday decision making. Quantitative literacy not only applies to every major and minor offered by the College, but to the Core Program as well."

"The sciences run our world these days, from computers to medicine," said Helmer. "While it's not necessary for everyone to know how to develop a computer, at least some understanding of life's inner workings can help make sense of the madness in today's society. It can also help put oneself into perspective with the rest of the world."

With the continued support of the INSGC and the education of students and faculty in the use of Vernier technology, quantitative literacy will become an even greater asset that SJC graduates possess once they enter the workforce. SJC seeks to educate the "whole self," and with a foundation in faith, a liberal education, and quantitative literacy, its students will have all the building blocks necessary for a successful future.

A DIAMOND IN THE ROUGH

In June, Eric Meyerchick '12 of the SJC baseball team signed a free-agent contract with the Arizona Diamondbacks. Within five days, he was on a plane to Arizona to be a part of their rookie team. Meyerchick will be back on SJC's campus this winter to continue training in an effort to improve his standing within the organization.

Pitching—and athletics in general—is about adjustments. Being transplanted from Lansing, Ill. to Scottsdale, Ariz. was a big one, but treating a sport as a profession was even more challenging. Meyerchick explained that some of the major adjustments were getting used to the new hitters, pitching every day, and having to deal with the climate—there is a vast difference in the humidity level from Lansing to Scottsdale. Understanding how the ball was going to react was another adjustment to master.

However, Meyerchick's days quickly developed into a steady routine. Meyerchick would either pitch in the game or get in a throwing session on the side. The schedule consisted of 56 games with off days scheduled for every fifth day. With games ending later in the evening, there were not many post-game celebrations. "Things worked out great," Meyerchick said. "I was around a lot of younger players that were all looking for 'that chance.' My roommate was rehabbing from an injury, so we were on different time schedules. We would see each other for a few minutes a day, share a few stories, and go about our business."

The off days provided a number of different activities, but always on the list was to go to the ballpark and get in a workout. During the week there was so much attention given to baseball that it was relaxing for Meyerchick to venture out into the community and enjoy his surroundings.

The movie theatre became a second home, and as Meyerchick wrote in his summer blogs, he wasn't afraid to write a review of the film. He became more dedicated in his new hobby—golf. A golfer in high school, Meyerchick had spent most of his summers playing baseball and golfing less. Most important, he was able to make time for his family and friends who made the trip to Arizona to visit.

After a rocky beginning, Meyerchick closed out the season strong. He finished with a 3-2 record and a 5.48 ERA. His ERA sat near 12 in his first few starts, but in his final 10 appearances, he recorded a 2.31 ERA in 11.2 innings of work with 12 strikeouts.

"There is a different mindset at this level. People want the team to do well, but they also want to stand out individually to advance their careers. The feeling of winning is different."

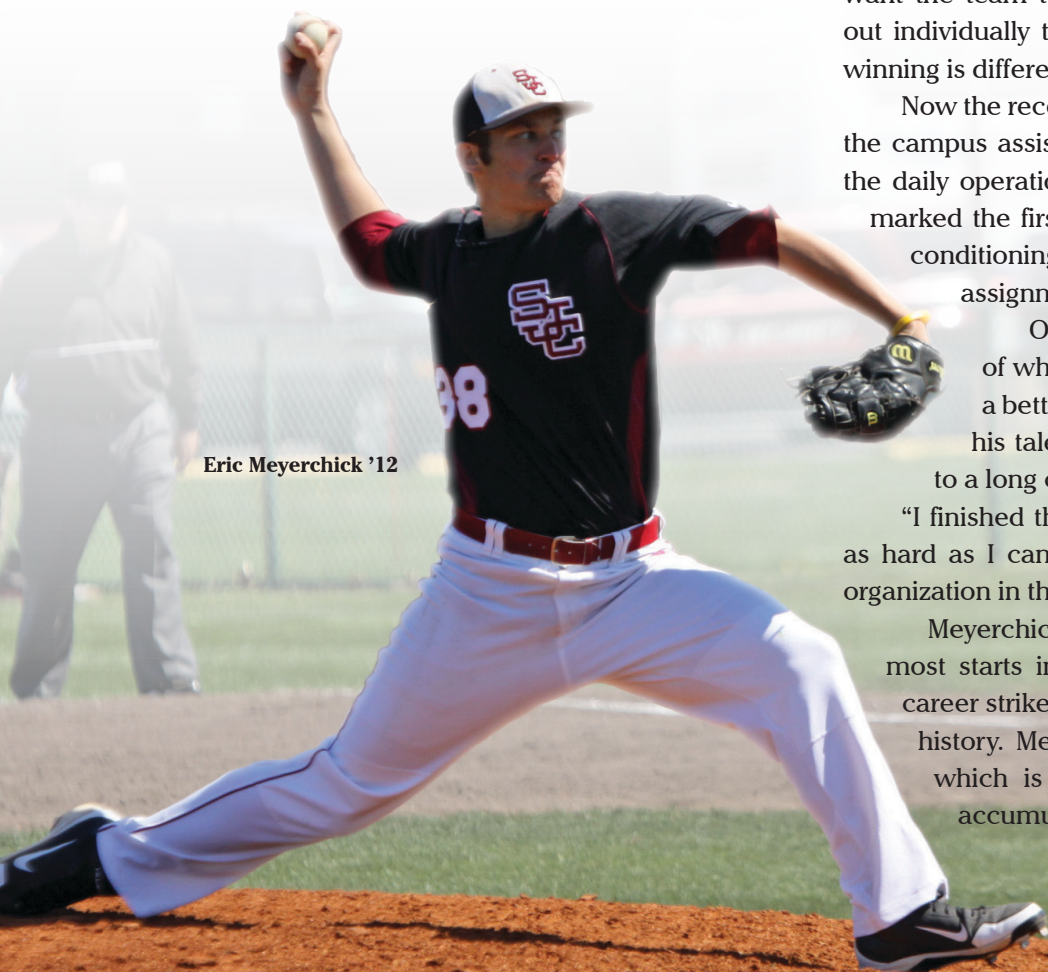

Now the recent graduate of SJC finds himself back on the campus assisting head coach Rick O'Dette '99 with the daily operations of the baseball program. October 1 marked the first day Meyerchick started his off-season conditioning program, with intense and specific assignments set forth by the Diamondbacks.

O'Dette said, "Eric has a firm understanding of what needs to be done in order to become a better player. His internal drive complements his talent level, which will hopefully carry Eric to a long career."

"I finished the season well, and all I can do is work as hard as I can in an effort to move up higher in the organization in the future," concluded Meyerchick.

Meyerchick ended his collegiate career with the most starts in SJC history. His 21 victories and 198 career strikeouts rank as the third highest total in SJC history. Meyerchick also completed 245.2 innings, which is fourth all-time, and the most innings accumulated in 10 seasons.

Katee Sanderson '13

TAKES NUMBER ONE IN SINGLES

Mary Quasney '95 stood atop the SJC tennis record books for 17 years as the most prolific tennis player in SJC history. In her career, she posted a singles record of 69-1 with a 67-2 mark in doubles play. Still the highest winning percentage in school history, but Quasney's win total now sits second to Katee Sanderson '13.

To put into perspective how dominant Quasney was: she not only lost just three total matches in her career, she helped SJC to three GLVC Conference Championships. The 2007 inductee in the GLVC Hall of Fame, Quasney never lost a match in GLVC play either – a perfect 32-0. The league also recognized her as the MVP four times as she earned ITA All-American status three times.

Sanderson, the daughter of head coach Reggie Sanderson, won her 70th match in October at the SJC Invitational. Since coming to SJC, Sanderson quickly took hold of the number one singles position, posting a 22-4 record in singles play. She helped the Pumas earn the program's first-ever NCAA Tournament berth. Sanderson is not a stranger to records, as her singles mark in 2009-10 was the best single season win total in SJC history.

Entering her senior season, Sanderson is 6-0 at number one singles, as she won the Ashford Tournament as the eighth seed. More impressively, Sanderson lost a majority of her junior season with acute appendicitis. Due to her condition, she suffered some complications while recovering, which left her in the hospital for 13 days. Sanderson missed most of the spring and the entire Great Lakes Valley Conference season. A year ago, every player had to move a spot in the line-up when Sanderson exited in the spring. Consequently the Pumas suffered some 6-3 and 5-4 losses.

Katee Sanderson '13

Back and healthy in 2012-13, Sanderson already looks to have regained her form from the previous years. SJC, now without perennial power Northern Kentucky in the GLVC East Division, is looking to return to the GLVC Tournament. The last appearance was in the magical 2009-10 season. With virtually the same roster as last season and the addition of a couple of impressive newcomers, the Pumas are a viable threat to return to the postseason.

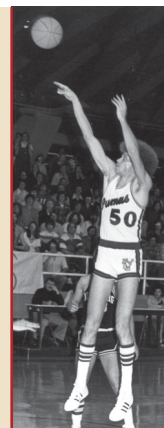

Sanderson has also posted a stellar 62-11 record in doubles play with two different partners. In her career, she has twice been recognized on the All-GLVC First Team.

Every day is a blessing; for Sanderson just to be back around tennis carries a special sentiment.

JIMMY THORDSEN '75, Olympic star and award-winning basketball player, spoke to students on October 3. Some of the topics Thordsen talked about:

- What brought him to SJC
- What it was like to play in the Olympics
- His first job after graduation
- Advice on preparing for a job after graduation

FACULTY Notes

ROBERT D. BRODMAN, PH.D., Professor of Biology and Environmental Science, peer-reviewed these papers and chapters: “The affect of aquatic glyphosate herbicides on survival, growth, development, and behavior of larval Ambystoma salamanders” in Herbicides (A. Price, ed., 2013) and “Spotted Salamander, Ambystoma maculatum Shaw” in Ohio Amphibians and Reptiles (R.A. Pflingsten, ed., 2013). In 2012, he was an invited contributing author for the technical report “Woodlands and Savannas” in Habitat Management Guidelines for Amphibians and Reptiles of the Midwestern United States (B. A. Kingsbury and J. Gibson, eds.) in the series Partners in Amphibian and Reptile Conservation Technical Publication HMG-1. In 2012, Brodman was an invited speaker to the Frog Monitoring Workshop in West Lafayette, Ind., presenting “Wednesday in the Wild Program at Celery Bog Nature Area,” and was also invited to present “Wetland density and connectivity: the connection between landscape ecology, and conservation of amphibian communities” to the Midwest Partners in Amphibian & Reptile Conservation (PARC) meeting in Montpelier, Ohio. He also made a poster presentation for Midwest PARC, “The direct effects of aquatic herbicide on Spotted Salamander eggs and larvae,” with several others in 2012. Brodman was invited to make a presentation, “A five-year experimental assessment of oak savanna restoration: short-term response of amphibians and reptile communities to aggressive canopy removal and fire management,” at the 7th World Congress of Herpetology Symposium in 2012 in Vancouver, BC, Canada. In 2011–12, he presented a paper at the Joint Meeting of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists in Minneapolis: “Do Amphibians believe in climate change?” He was an invited speaker to the Daryl Karns Herpetology Symposium at the Indiana Academy of Sciences meeting hosted by Purdue University. Brodman, along with several collaborators, was awarded a $20,500 research grant (2009–13) for a five-year experimental assessment of oak barrens restoration: short-term response of botanical and animal communities to aggressive canopy removal and fire management. Brodman is on these advisory & editorial boards: Herpetological Conservation and Biology Associate Editor and steering committee member (since 2006); Indiana DNR Technical Advisory Committee Chair on Amphibians and Reptiles (since 2009); Midwest Partners for Amphibian and Reptile Conservation (PARC) Advisory Board (since 2008, re-elected in 2012); thesis committee member, Department of Biology, University of Saint Francis, Ft. Wayne (2012); external faculty promotion reviewer: Indiana University-Kokomo (2012); and Indiana Academy of Science Blihlitz Herpetology team leader at Kankakee Sands (2012). He participated in the annual survey of the federally endangered Lake Erie Water Snake (Nerodia sipedon insularum) on Kelly’s Island, Ohio (since 2007).

BRIAN CAPOUCH, Assistant Professor of Computer Science, gave a talk at the O’Reilly Open Source Conference on July 18 in Portland, Ore. about the work done in the fall semester 2011 by his software engineering class—geospatial “reading” of Independence Cemetery in northern Jasper County. As part of his sabbatical, Capouch completed a 15-month stint as a weekly columnist for the Pulaski County Journal. “A Curious Historian’s Tales” dealt with a historical topic of local interest. Also, as part of that sabbatical, Capouch spent the summer of 2012 leading the SJC community in a rollout of its first experience in cloud computing, setting up and providing primary administration for our foray into Google Apps.

DAVE DIXON, PH.D., Associate Professor of Political Science, sought permissions June 1–August 6 to publish intellectual property from the families of Thurgood Marshall, Ralph McGill, Reinhold Niebuhr, James Baldwin, R. Sargent Shriver, Jr., John Beecher, Ralph Bunche, Merrimon Cuninggim, Revs. Thomas Kilgore, Jr., T.B. Maston, Milton A. Galamison, Stephen Gill Spottswood, Daniel V. Germann, Vincent Harding, and Rabbis Joachim Prinz, Jacob M. Rothschild, Stanley Yedwab, William Silverman, Simcha Kling, Milton Grafman, and Arthur Lelyveld. Dixon submitted a 500-page manuscript “Rhetoric, Religion and the Civil Rights Movement, Volume II,” to Baylor University Press on August 7. He received a “revise and re-submit” decision on August 14 from the Indiana Journal of Political Science for a manuscript co-authored with students from the 2011 Seminar in Political Science.

KAREN DONNELLY, PH.D., Professor of Mathematics, won the Curtis Creek Country Ladies' Club Championship for the 20th time on Labor Day weekend. Her grandmother was the first Ladies' Club champion at Curtis Creek Country Club. She also serves as the Rensselaer Central High School girls' assistant golf coach.

NEAL H. HASKELL, PH.D., Professor of Biology, was named a finalist for fellowship in The Society of Innovators of Northwest Indiana "for being a global advocate, pioneering scientist and world-renowned expert in forensic entomology, studying insects to solve criminal cases, testifying in more trials than any other forensic entomologist, and being a trailblazer." Haskell was inducted as a Fellow in the eighth Annual Innovators Induction Ceremony on October 18.

TODD HUFF '03, Lecturer, completed 14 hours of instruction July 31-August 1 in "Compounding for Performance" and seven hours of instruction on August 2 in "Solving Problems in Rubber Compounding and Processing," both offered by the Rubber Division of the American Chemical Society in Atlanta, Ga. He obtained five continuing education credits on August 1 for completing the "Basic Rubber Technology" web course offered by the Rubber Division of the American Chemical Society and the University of Akron. Huff became a member of The Wire Association International on August 27.

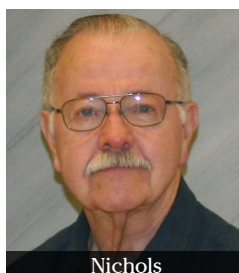

JOANNA S. HUNTER, PH.D., Assistant Professor of Sociology, presented a paper, "Religious Identity at a Catholic College," at the Annual Meetings for the Southern Sociological Society in New Orleans in April. She also wrote "51%: A Generational Divide" for 51%: Women and the Future of Politics (Terry Spahr Nelson, ed., Sugati Publications), to be published in December 2012.

TERESA M. MASSOELS '89, Associate Professor of Management and Marketing, will serve for the next two years as Vice Chair for the Great Lakes Valley Conference Steering Committee and attended the Great Lakes Valley Conference Fall Meeting in Indianapolis on September 19. She attended the Midwestern Higher Education Committee Conference in Minneapolis September 20-21.

JOHN NICHOLS, PH.D., NEH Distinguished Professor and Professor of Philosophy, presented at the Association for General and Liberal Studies (AGLS) conference September 20-22 in Portland, Ore. Also in attendance were Professor of Philosophy and Dean of the Core Program Mike Malone, Ph.D., who is the national organization treasurer for AGLS, and Assistant Professor of Communication Heidi L. Rahe.

JONATHAN NICHOLS '93, Writing Support Specialist in the Learning Resource Center at the College, co-authored a book of short stories with Bernard Sell '92. The book, Monsters, is available on Amazon. Nichols also e-published a novella, Hound of Winter.

KAREN VENDITTI, PH.D., Assistant Professor of Education, co-presented "Screening for Success: RTL [Ready to Learn] in Higher Education" with Dr. Jennifer Barce at the Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools annual conference in Chicago on April 2. That month, Venditti was elected to serve a three-year term as the higher education representative on the Indiana State Teachers Association Board of Directors. She attended a co-teaching training session May 20-22 with St. Cloud State University faculty in Minneapolis in order to fully implement a new design for student teaching in fall 2012. Dr. Jennifer Barce and college supervisor

Connie Blackketter were certified to put the model into practice with area teachers and administrators. In May, Venditti served as a grant reviewer for the Department of Defense Education Activity Military-Connected Local Educational Agencies for Academic and Support Programs grant competition. The grants were STEM-related designs aimed at supporting students of military personnel. Venditti served as the Indiana higher education elected state delegate at the National Education Association Representative Assembly in Washington, DC June 30-July 5. She attended the Indiana State Teachers Association Board of Directors' meeting in Indianapolis as the higher education representative July 26-28.

BONNIE ZIMMER, Associate Professor of Art and Assistant Professor of Education, was coordinator for the Prairie Arts Council's "Annual Regional Art Teachers' Seminar and Workshop" held on campus on August 3 and was the instructor for a tie-dye workshop during Freshman Orientation's "Picnic with the Professors" at Lake Banet on August 18. As an invited artist to a charity fundraiser event for the Lafayette Museum of Art, Zimmer created an original chair and wall sculpture from a repurposed chair (on display May-September). Her "Under Indiana Skies: The Rural Artists" was included in an exhibition by Jasper and Newton County artists at Tippecanoe Arts Federation Galleries in Lafayette, Ind. August 4-September 7 and in the Lilian Fendig Gallery in Rensselaer, October 5-November 4. She was the coordinator of the "Arts Alive Art Workshop Series" of the Prairie Arts Council in fall. She was the coordinator and instructor for the Kid's Art Tent at the SJC 2012 Homecoming. She was awarded the John Corey Award on October 10 at "The Bravo Arts Event" of the Tippecanoe Arts Federation in Lafayette, Ind. for "significant contributions to the arts and the community served through leadership, volunteerism, vision and commitment to excellence in Rensselaer and Saint Joseph's College." In attendance were SJC Fellow and State Representative Sheila Klinker, Senator Ron Alting, Representative Randy Truitt, Councilwoman Vicki Burch, and Councilman Steve Meyer '81.

“She's been impacting the landscape of the arts community not only in our region...but the entire state for decades.

– SCOTT FREEMAN, ON BEHALF OF THE
TIPPECANOE ARTS FEDERATION

Lana Zimmer

LANA ZIMMER, PH.D., Associate Professor of Education; Assistant Professor of Communication Rochelle Robertson, Ph.D.; and SJC student Adrienne DiRuzza '13 (senior Biology major and garden manager) gave a conference presentation September 7-9 at the National/International Urban and Small Farm Conference in Milwaukee. The conference was sponsored by Growing Power, an urban agriculture project that is feeding thousands and employing hundreds of people that otherwise would not have access to healthy fresh food in that region. The conference theme was "The Good Food Revolution." The presentation was entitled "Community Collaborations: One College's Story about Creating a Small Farm Program." Although they presented information about the local grants and partnerships that made the development of the SJC Community Learning Garden and GREEN Pumas Orchard possible, it showcased the BVF [Ball Venture Fund] Hoophouse Farming Eduventure (funded by the Ball Foundation), a business venture run by students that provides fresh, organically grown food year-round for the campus community and the Good Samaritan Food Pantry.

Professor Bonnie Zimmer accepts the prestigious 2012 John Corey Award from Jason Bennet, a member of the board of Tippecanoe Arts Federation.

STUDENT SPOTLIGHT

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS FOR COLBY ALEXIS ~ A central theme of the Saint Joseph's College experience is "opportunity." Beginning a major freshman year, leadership roles readily available, the ability to design a major or minor, and the possibility to study in locations around the world are all opportunities afforded to students at SJC. Political Science major Colby Alexis '14 (pictured far right) has taken advantage of every one of these opportunities, discovering first hand that the possibilities for growth and learning at SJC are endless.

A native of Port Huron, Mich., Alexis is a recipient of SJC's Presidential Scholarship, the most prestigious scholarship that Saint Joseph's College offers. Alexis has lived up to the expectations that come with this honor, positioning himself as a leader in several clubs and organizations and excelling in the classroom.

Because of his interest in political science, Alexis has been very active in Student Association (SA), the student government of SJC. He is currently the executive vice president of SA, which involves meeting regularly with faculty and administrators as well as representing the student body in the student senate.

"One of the great benefits of attending SJC is that you can join many clubs and are not limited to just a few," said Alexis. "For example, I am a member of not only SA, but three different bands, SJC's chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta Honor Society, and the Puma Activities Council."

In the summer of 2012, Alexis studied abroad at Leuphana University in Luneburg, Germany. He earned the opportunity after receiving a James G. Stemler Study Abroad Scholarship in the amount of $1,000. The scholarships are awarded to members of Alpha Lambda Delta Honor Society who are pursuing a for-credit study abroad program.

"Saint Joseph's College helped prepare me for my study abroad and gave me the support I needed to succeed while living and studying in Europe."

Alexis' love for the German language and culture actually led him to create his own minor, German Language and Politics.

"One of the best experiences I have had academically at SJC was doing an independent study with a professor in German Language. Although SJC doesn't have a German department, a professor who studied German extensively during his graduate work and abroad in Germany offered to work with me in order to better prepare me for my study abroad experience. SJC has also afforded me a truly world-class education in the fields of Political Science and Philosophy that will aid tremendously in my efforts to attend a top law school after graduating from SJC."

Another opportunity in which Alexis has found a deep appreciation is the religious foundation of the College and the chance to fully immerse himself in and practice his faith.

"As a Catholic student, I find that SJC offers many opportunities for me to express my faith within the faith traditions of the Roman Catholic Church," said Alexis. "I also enjoy the fact that our Campus Ministry program, led by the Missionaries of the Precious Blood, caters to students of all faiths, allowing for better religious and personal diversity in campus activities. It is especially important to me that we have a large amount of intellectual and religious diversity in the classroom."

As graduation nears, Alexis has his sights set on attending Harvard Law School. Whether or not he ends up there, Alexis knows this for sure:

"If you are looking for a world-class liberal education where you receive lots of support, SJC is where you want to be!"

DR. JEFFREY CAPADONA '00 HONORED BY PRESIDENT BARACK OBAMA In July 2012, Capadona was one of 96 researchers named by U.S. President Barack Obama as a recipient of the Presidential Early Career Awards for Scientists and Engineers. This is the highest honor bestowed by the United States Government on science and engineering professionals in the early stages of their independent research careers.

The awards, established by President Clinton in 1996, are coordinated by the Office of Science and Technology Policy within the Executive Office of the President. Awardees are selected for their pursuit of innovative research at the frontiers of science and technology and for their commitment to community service as demonstrated through scientific leadership, public education, or community outreach.

Capadona is a biomedical engineering associate professor at Case Western Reserve University and a research health scientist at the Louis Stokes Cleveland Veteran's Administration Medical Center. He earned his Bachelor of Science in Chemistry from Saint Joseph's College, where he was also a member of the baseball team, and his doctoral degree in Chemistry from the Georgia Institute of Technology. He currently resides in North Ridgeville, Ohio.

The recipients of the Presidential early career awards are employed or funded by the following departments and agencies: Agriculture, Commerce, Defense, Education, Energy, Health and Human Services, Interior, Veteran Affairs, Environmental Protection Agency, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and the National Science Foundation, which join together annually to nominate the most meritorious scientists and engineers whose early accomplishments show the greatest promise for assuring America's preeminence in science and engineering and contributing to the awarding agencies' missions.

HONOR ROLL of DONORS

In the pages that follow, you will find the 2012 Honor Roll of Donors listing the College's supporters from July 1, 2011 through June 30, 2012. We are grateful for the tremendous support of our alumni, parents, and friends who give so generously to ensure the College's continued success.

Generosity permeates the culture at Saint Joseph's College. Whether it's our students selflessly giving their free time to stock shelves at the food pantry, faculty and staff members sacrificing their spring breaks to lead Habitat for Humanity trips, or our constituents who volunteer, offer ideas, and financially support the College, we cannot thank you enough for all that you do for SJC. You are the reason the College was, once again, named among the best colleges in the Midwest by U.S. News Media Group.

Thank you to the many contributors who joined in our fundraising efforts this year. If, by our error, your name did not get listed – we offer our apologies and ask that you contact us at 800.277.1898 or email collegefund@saintjoe.edu.

With many thanks,

Mark Brouwer '04
